CONNELLSVILLE GARAGE
HAS PRESENTED NO BID

Report That It Had Offered Auto Fire Truck For $150 Is Denied.

Some days ago it was stated that the Connelville Garage had submitted a bid of $4,500 for an automobile fire truck. The information came from a member of the Public Safety Committee of Town Council and was apparently authoritative.

According to V. J. Clark of the garage, no proposal has been submitted. Mr. Clark stated that the Connelville Garage would enter a bid but presumed the estimates would be sealed. He states that the garage is not showing its hand as yet. In any event, it was stated, the bid will be in excess of $1,500.

"The report places us in an embarrassing situation," Mr. Clark said. "Suppose we get the contract at a figure in excess of $4,500, which it will be if we get it. The public would infer that we had not dealt fairly with the borough and suspicion might be directed at perfectly innocent members of Council."

It is not known when bids for the truck will be submitted. Chairman Stoner is looking into the various auto trucks on the market and will probably ask for final bids in the near future.

MAYOR GAYNOR IS GAINING STRENGTH
AT ATLANTIC CITY.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 27.—Mayor William J. Gaynor is gaining strength by a brief stay here. He spends much time on the board walk in the open air. He expects to return to New York Sunday or Monday. This picture was made as he was enjoying a stroll.

STORMY NIGHT REDUCED THE ELECTRIC SHOW ATTENDANCE

But the Exhibitors Were on the Job Just the Same and Boosting Their Wares.

The wind and rain last evening kept many people at home with the result that standing room was not crowded at the Electric Show last evening. This gave the demonstrators more time to host their wares to those who did appear. The West Penn boosters were busy, as usual, with their flat rate proposition.

The Iron City Electric Company seems to be getting the business. This company has an attractive booth midway along the south side of the hall. It is in charge of C. M. Maxwell, a Connelville boy who was for several years with the Colonial Electric Company. He left the Colonial to locate in Des Moines but decided this section looked better than the Middle West and is now pushing the Iron City product. One of the best orders placed by one of the exhibitors was a vacuum cleaner which the Featherman Furniture Company has purchased from the Iron City concern. All kinds of up to date appliances are sold here and up to date appliances are sold by this company.

For a time during the evening the "piles" was weak. This trouble was noticed at our town. The 2,000 candlepower that is burning at the Electric Show all the time it is open showed some of the effects but as most of the lamps are tungstens, the heat of new or worn is not as great as only carbon filament lamps burn used. Most of the 20,000 candlepower comes from the Westinghouse wire type tungstens. The West Penn Electric Company handles only the Westinghouse lamps. Other exhibitors are giving the wire drawn tungstens preference over the wire type, but in the general illuminating arrangement the Westinghouse are used.

J. L. Earl of the West Side has one of the most attractive booths at the show. His display is modest, but he has produced results in arranging his booth. V. L. Chorprenning also has an attractive display.

The Volta-Mills Electric Company keeps the washing machine going most of the time. It has made quite a hit with the feminine visitors.

The most interesting exhibit that has yet been made is the comparison of current consumption by tungsten and by carbon filament lamps. Two candlepower lamps are placed on two meters. The meter recording tungsten current consumption runs noticeably slower than that of the carbon lamps.

Connellville is to have a slogan. Every one attending the Electric Show from now on until its close will be given an opportunity to participate in the choosing of a slogan for the city.

After the close of the show judges will be named and the winner chosen. The lucky winner will be given an electric iron free. Another contest to be inaugurated by the West Penn at the Electric Show will be the award of an electric toaster to the person coming nearest to the number of people attending the show, beginning with the opening last Thursday.

Emergency Kits Urged For Passenger Trains. State Railroad Commission Report Also Refers to Wayward Cars Near Shock.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—Marshall John P. Doherty has prepared a report on the Wayward Midge accident on the Pennsylvania railroad, February 16, for the State Railroad Commission in which he gives the description of an accident and its striking against the point of a switch as the cause of the derailment. The report also refers to the manner in which the steel cars withstood the shock in the report is a reference to a letter written by a passenger on the train who urged that "emergency kits" be provided for accidents and that such tools as will break down doors and heavy glass windows be placed on cars.

The marshal is also investigating some slight accidents that have occurred in the past few days. In the last 24 hours in which two passenger trains had minor escapes. In one instance an engineer on a Northern Central train stopped his train near Spencerville when he found part of the blinker light had dropped, preventing serious damage.

Case Was Settled. Constable Joseph Snyder of Connelville township conducted a raid on a poker game in the rear of the Davidson store Sunday afternoon and although he did not capture any of the offenders he recognized some of them and made information against them yesterday before Judge Stillwagon. This morning the case was withdrawn upon payment of costs.

Is Operated On. Miss Ada Nicholas of Main street underwent an operation to gall stones this morning at the Cottage State hospital.

TRUE FRIEND

He Knew What Food Alone Would Do. Three years ago my brother was suddenly stricken with acute stomach trouble that ultimately reduced him to mere skeleton. He consulted three doctors and two specialists but they gave him no relief.

"Eating ordinary food, even the smallest quantity, meant for him terrible pain which kept up until he had vomited almost all of the food up again."

"He tried many prepared foods but not one of them seemed to help, and he said they even aggravated his trouble, and when a friend urged him to try Grape-Nuts he bluntly refused. This friend being persistent went out and bought a package of Grape-Nuts and prepared a small amount of it and actually urged him until he ate it with some cream. The results were pleasant, for the first time in a long, long time he had found food that would stick on his stomach."

"Not only this, but the Grape-Nuts rapidly brought him back to health. He lived on Grape-Nuts and cream the following week and nothing else and the effects were magical, and the following three months he ate almost nothing else, talking absolutely no medicine, and in that short time not only was his health entirely regained, but his weight also and today he is strong and in perfect health once more." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

When trouble comes from improper food no medicine can cure until the food is changed. In fact, it has been corrected by a change of diet to the proper food. Grape-Nuts being absolutely the most nourishing and the most digestible food in the world, work wonders in such cases, as a toning and vitalizing agent.

BIG MINE STRIKE HINGES ON CONFAB

Anthracite Operators and Miners Begin Deliberations Today.

DEMANDS WILL NOT BE GRANTED

Generally Believed That Operators
Will Not Yield to Program of United Mine Workers—Presidential Campaign May Have Some Bearing.

Special to The Courier.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Whether the 150,000 mine workers employed in the hard coal region will lay down their picks and walk out on strike on the last day of next month, and by their action inaugurate one of the greatest industrial struggles the United States has ever known, depends in a great measure upon the results of the conference between the miners and operators begun today at the offices of the New Jersey Central Railroad in this city. George F. Baer, president of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal Company, appeared at the conference as the chief representative of the operators. The committee to present the demands of the miners consisted of John D. White, president of the United Mine Workers, and several of the other national officers and district presidents.

There has been peace in the anthracite coal field for nine years. The present agreement, which has been in force since the Strike Commission, appointed by President Roosevelt in 1902, made its report, will expire at midnight on March 31 next. The miners have formulated demands and declare they will strike unless the demands are granted. As the operators say with equal positiveness they will grant the miners no concessions, the outlook certainly points to a general strike on April 1.

There are unique temptations to trouble at the present time. In the first place, an unusual situation prevails in that the wage agreements in both the soft and hard coal fields expire at the same time—then, too, it is a presidential year. This gives the mine workers' organization a strong weapon, because by simultaneous action in several mining regions the leaders could create a condition approaching a fuel famine.

The anthracite miners demand a wage increase averaging 50 per cent, an eight-hour day, recognition of the union and incidentally collection by the coal companies of the union dues from the mine workers, abolition of the conciliation board, payment for mined coal by weight instead of by the carload, a one-year agreement and minor concessions.

The operators have not given any official notice of their intentions, but it is well known that they have no intention of granting these demands. While the mine workers argue that the increased cost of living has made necessary a wage increase, the operators hold that the "sliding scale" created by the Strike Commission in 1902 has given the miners advantage of every advance in the price of coal, and that no flat advance in wages is possible under present conditions. The operators admit that there has been an increase in the cost of living, but point out that the mine workers are making much better wages now because work is more steady. They declare that since the present agreement was first made nine years ago there has been no change in mining conditions; that the demands, with the exception of the one for an increase in wages, are the same as those which the Strike Commission considered and settled, and that it is useless to go over them again.

The connection between the presidential campaign and the threatened strike is one of the most interesting phases of the situation. The experience eleven years ago shows that the connection between the two is not an imaginary one. It has been well established by testimony in open court that the danger of the McKinley-Roosevelt debate in 1900 forced the operators' hands in that year. There was a strike on then, and the mine owners were holding their own, but the strike was brought to an end by a grant of a 10 per cent increase in wages. It was known soon after that the conservative business interests of the country, alarmed by Bryan and free silver should succeed, represented to the mine owners that a continuance of the strike would endanger the Republican chances, and the persuasion was so powerful that the operators yielded.

Democratic Tariff Folly.

When the Democratic amendments to the metal schedule passed the House, The Courier said that the United States Steel Corporation, against which Democratic Free Trade in iron and steel was aimed, might be able to operate its plants under such conditions, owing to its extensive natural resources, the elimination from its costs of all middlemen charges and the minimizing of most fixed charges.

We did not venture the positive opinion that the Steel Corporation could operate profitably without and Tariff Protection, but only that it might do so. At the same time, however, we expressed the conviction that the independent manufacturers could not compete with foreign manufacturers with their underpaid labor, and that reductions of wages to European levels would be impossible in this country.

The hearings of the independent manufacturers before the Senate Committee on Finance are all to the same tenor and effect, and of these manufacturers are relatively as well fortified as the Steel Corporation to turn out this product cheaply. Charles Schwab stated without reserve that if the Underwood bill became a law he would immediately dispose of the Bethlehem steel plant and retire from an unprofitable business. Other large independent manufacturers stated positively that they could not operate their plants without some measure of Tariff Protection.

There is perhaps one other iron and steel producing district that can operate on a Free Trade basis and that is the Birmingham district of Alabama which singularly enough is represented in Congress by Chairman Underwood. Perhaps he seeks to serve his own, but if so at what a sacrifice to the country.

Democratic Free Trade in iron and steel means idle mills and idle men all over the country and sends them home to mean smokeless coke ovens, unemployed men, want and suffering in the Connellville coke region.

President Taft, however, has the veto power, and he will save us from such a frightful condition, but the only way to guarantee permanency against it is to vote the Republican ticket this fall and insure the election of a Republican Congress.

Colonel Roosevelt and the Recall.
The passionate plea of Colonel Roosevelt for the right of the people to Recall the decisions of the courts when they were not satisfactory is beginning to be better understood since he has announced that he will accept, subject to the confirmation of the Republican National Convention, the Republican nomination for the Presidency, tendered him by the Hon. Bill Flinn of Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, and other political has-beens who hope by hanging onto the Colonel's coat-tails to get once more in the glorious limelight of publicity.

So complete a convert as Colonel Roosevelt to the doctrine of the Recall that he has extended his approval of its provisions to cover his own political decisions. On the night of November 5th, 1901, he voluntarily declared, "Under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination." This solemn pledge to the American people has been recalled. The Colonel may Recall until the cows come home, but his people will still remember. He may be the Initiative and the Recall in this particular case but the people will be the Referendum.

The Recall of either political or judicial decisions is evidently fraught with peril for those who set the new and strange machinery in motion.

Like the Australian's crooked stick it comes back and strikes pretty close to home. The latest and most practical application of the Recall by Colonel Roosevelt is certain to recall many of his hitherto friends and admirers.

President Taft will be renominated and Colonel Roosevelt will be recalled to his Third Term Promise.

Colonel Roosevelt offers his military services to President Taft for the purpose of protecting American interests on the Mexican border, but he stipulates that he must be permitted the privilege of naming the officers of the regiment of Rough Riders he proposes to raise. Judging from the names of the officers, the Colonel expects to secure a few delegates from Texas, Oklahoma and other Western States. President Taft finds the proposition very interesting, but not interesting enough to accept.

Colonel Bryan interprets Colonel Roosevelt's candidacy to mean that President Taft, whom Colonel Roosevelt personally guaranteed to the country as a competent executive is a political bankrupt, thus necessitating Roosevelt's assumption of the reins. Colonel Bryan is nothing if not ingenious. He has needed this faculty to explain his own position on diverse occasions.

There is a suspicion in political circles that if the Rough Rider is given enough rope he will succeed in hanging the Third Term.

Rain, thunder and lightning made up some signs of spring last night, but heavy old Winter came back in the night to make us another visit. If any of the snakes got up last night, they had better go back to bed.

T. Roosevelt explains that he meant that he would not be a candidate for "a third consecutive term." That is not the way he expressed himself. The explanation is too lame to walk. Somebody will have to tote it.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

Eight candidates are contesting for the Republican nomination for Governor of Illinois.

Vermont Republicans will meet in Montpelier April 10 to select delegates at large to the Chicago convention.

Governor Kitchin of North Carolina is making a stamping tour of the State in his candidacy for the seat of United States Senator Simmons.

Albert H. Shaw, a wealthy lumberman of Bath, has announced that he will be a candidate in the Republican primaries for Governor of Maine.

Ex-Governor Port of New Jersey and United States Senator Chapp of Minnesota are to address a mass meeting of Progressive Republicans at Massachusetts in Boston, March 2.

The campaign in New Jersey to bring about the selection of Roosevelt delegates to the national Republican convention will be opened with a mass meeting in Newark on the evening of March 1.

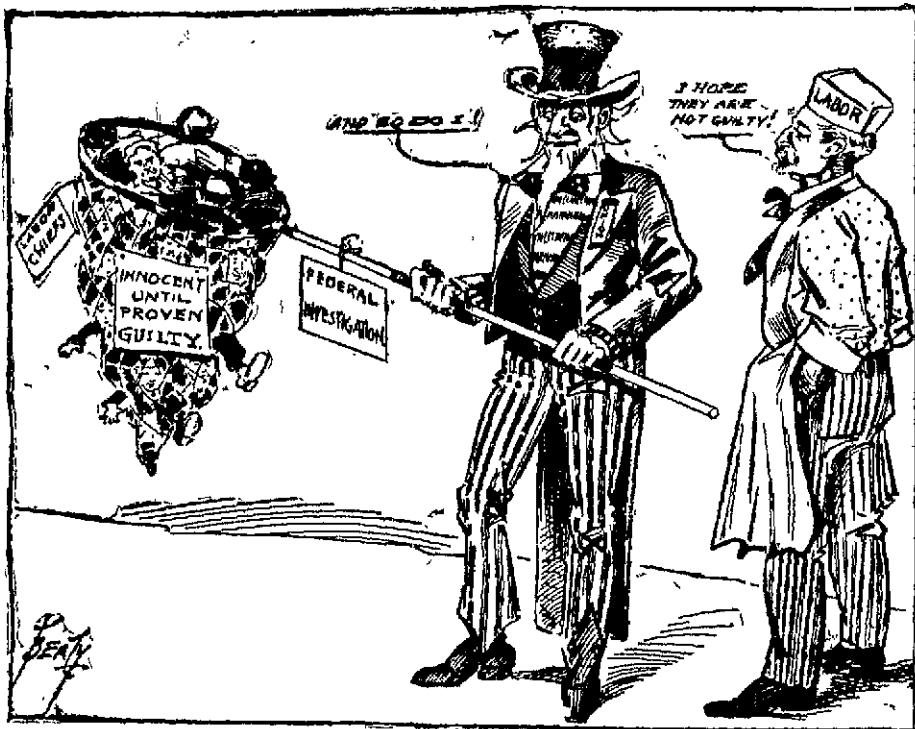

Three candidates are already in the field for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Iowa—George W. Clarke, the present Lieutenant Governor; A. Z. Proudfoot, a member of the State Senate, and Perry G. Ildred, until recently a professor at the Iowa Agricultural College.

A Brooklyn newspaper says a number of prominent New York State Republicans maintain that James B. Garfield, who was Secretary of the Interior in Roosevelt's Cabinet, is Colonel Roosevelt's "dark horse" candidate for the Republican nomination for President of the United States.

George H. Hodges, a member of the Kansas Senate and well known in politics, has announced his candidacy for the nomination for Governor on the "progressive" Democratic ticket. Opposed to Hodges for the nomination will be J. B. Billard, mayor of Topeka. The chief plank in Billard's platform is the resubmission of the prohibition law, in which he is opposed by Hodges.

Simultaneous with the withdrawal of Congressman Morris Sheppard from the race to succeed Senator Bailey comes the announcement of the candidacy of Cone Johnson for Bailey's son. Johnson once was attorney-general of Texas and has long been a bitter political foe of Senator Bailey. He is aligned with the prohibition element and is known as an able campaigner.

In the April primaries in Nebraska all parties will make their selection of candidates for congressmen, presidential electors, members of the legislature and governor and other State officers. In addition, national committeemen will be selected, delegates to the national convention named and a preference vote taken for President and Vice President and one United States Senator.

LAW TO MUZZLE ROOSTERS

In Los Angeles They Mustn't Crow Before 7 in the Morning, if Ordinance Passes.

Los Angeles roosters must get together on their crowing. The city attorney has been asked to draft an ordinance which will make it unlawful for roosters to crow earlier than 7 o'clock in the morning, Pacific time. There must be more unity of effort among the chattering-lass of individual endeavor at any old hour of the night that the rooster feels like crowing.

Mrs. Genevieve Dalrymple of 2359 East Seventh street, in taking her complaint to the city council, merely acted as messenger for many thousands who are unable to sleep because of crowing roosters, who start about midnight and keep it up until morning.

"Leave it to the city attorney. He will find some way to fix it," said Chairman Andrews of the legislation committee. With this meager instruction, John W. Shook, the city attorney, started somewhat on this order.

"The mayor and city council of the city of Los Angeles do ordain that it shall be unlawful for roosters to crow between the hours of 7 p. m. and 7 a. m. All roosters found guilty of violation of this ordinance shall be sentenced to be the principal ingredient of a popple."

However, the difficulty of enforcing an ordinance worded as outlined was apparent to the city attorney, and he will prepare a draft of one along some other line. It has been suggested that the roosters be muzzled, or that some sort of an operation on their throats be performed so that their exultant efforts may end in dismal gurgles. However, what will be done is still uncertain.—Los Angeles Tribune.

Shakespeare Ruled Out.

One by one our tottering idols fall. The Shakespeare convention has just been given the coup de grace by a literary club out west, which, after a spirited debate, ruled that William of Stratford is "licentious, unclean, objectionable" and should be displaced in study classes by the chaste G. B. Shaw.

Mr. Shaw may well be alarmed sometimes to find his teasing banter about Shakespeare and mock the trumpeting of himself as Shakespeare's superior taken so very solemnly.

Why cannot people understand, or take the trouble to understand (even people in "literary clubs"), that Shaw the perfidious is behind the comic mask the genuine lover of Shakespeare, whose protest as dramatic critic was against, not genuine and intelligent admiration for Shakespeare, but the conventional and sham "bardolatry" and the meretricious renderings which forget that "the play's the thing" and smother it in tinzel and rose pink.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Facetious Judge.

A horse dealer complained to a magistrate that some malicious person had cut off his horse's tail, which, as he meant to sell it, would be a great drawback.

"Then," said the magistrate, "you must sell the animal wholesale." "Wholesale?" replied the other. "What do you mean? How so?" "Because you cannot retail it," was the reply.

PRINTED CHALIS DRESS.
The challis used for this dress has a tan colored ground with a small design in dark red, and a net top lace is used in the form of a sailor collar. A plain silk, tan colored, like the challis, is used as a trimming. The black velvet loops pass through openings similar to buttonholes.

Bravery of the Cree Indians.
Many episodes of noble self-sacrifice might be related about the Cree, though they themselves never mention them. The stoical Indian woman does her duty and speaks of her life only when questioned concerning it. Occasionally one is found who will assert her woman's rights. I once saw a stalwart squaw chasing her husband around and around the wigwam, brandishing an ax and threatening to kill him, a feat she was quite capable of putting into execution. Upon another occasion an Indian asked me to "speak good things" to his wife as he was "ill used." Usually, however, the women are patient sufferers, willing slaves and beasts of burden. Widows are eagerly sought in marriage, owing to the fact that they inherit their dead husbands' hunting grounds. Frequently a young man is mated to a woman of twice his age.—Wide World Magazine.

The second district includes the Irwin and Greensburg fields. The Irwin strike had some effect upon the output, but did not materially affect the situation. AT THE THEATRE.

THE SOISSON.

"A MILLIONAIRE TRAMP." "A Millionaire Tramp" tells a touching story of human interest, a story with a moral foreboding and beautiful in its pathos. It is a story which makes one better for the knowing, yet a tale of such dramatic force and virility that interest is heightened by every word and situation.

The quiet home is a fitting atmosphere, one feels at home by the fire-side with the devoted young husband and wife, shudders at the entrance of the villains whose only purpose is to destroy the reputation of the husband in order to get the possession of another's wife. One cannot but help admire the fidelity of the little wife to the sorrowing wife and glory in the unflinching energy of "A Millionaire Tramp," who finally runs the evil doors to the end of their rope and right triumphs over might. "A Millionaire Tramp" will be the attraction at the Soisson theatre, Monday and night, Saturday, March 2.

SILVER SPOONS GIVEN FREE. The Soisson theatre is giving splendid pictures and all this week the patrons receive coupons for handsome sterling silver plated teaspoons. They are fine and will be appreciated by everyone.

HIGH WATERS ARE DOING MUCH HARM

But Cold Turn in Weather is Lessening the Flood Somewhat.

JACOB C. DEWALT IS DEAD

Former Resident of Scottdale and Well Known Throughout This Line—Died at Home—Funeral Given for Newlyn.

SCOTSDALE, Feb. 27.—The high waters have been somewhat lessened by the return of cold weather again, but there was enough warmth, melting and rain on Monday to throw a great flood into the valley about here. Jacobs Creek, frozen over more this year than for many years, with heavy ice cakes along either side, contributed heavily to the flood, and throughout Scotland, South Evanson and all below there, the stream was far beyond the banks this morning, rising last night very swiftly, but receding some today. The damage to the fields through the warmer weather was quite marked. The top of the earth was loose and the ruins yesterday simply washed it all off and carried the earth and crops on it down the valleys. All wheat fields were badly washed and mowed, too, very greatly damaged.

It will cause the farmers to get late to their plowing as the fields are frozen ten and three feet deep.

JACOB DEWALT DEAD.

Jacob DeWalt, aged 68, died at his home at Beaver on Sunday, death being due to infirmities. Mr. DeWalt was for many years mine foreman of the Franklin plant at Owensdale moving from there to Scottdale, where he was well known. He was also employed as mine foreman under the Erie, Erie and Erie and Erie mines. When the Civil War broke out he was among the first to enlist as a Pennsylvania volunteer and served all through the war.

The deceased was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. The remains were taken to Buena Vista, near McKeesport, with interment this afternoon in the Mt. Vernon cemetery at that place. Deceased is survived by his wife, Sara DeWalt, a son, Robert and a daughter, Lila, both at home.

FOR NEWLYWEDS.

A prettily appointed affair was the luncheon and reception which Mr. and Mrs. George Clarkson gave Saturday for their immediate friends in honor of the marriage of their daughter, Anna Maud, to Harry Y. Kommer of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Clarkson is a well known young lady of Scottdale and her husband will be best remembered as "Whitey," the clever little second baseman of the Scottdale team in the West Penn league.

The house decorations were in pink and white roses and tulle ribbons of those colors being distributed profusely throughout the rooms. Games and amusements were indulged with enthusiasm, everyone being determined to make the occasion long to be remembered by the bride and bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Kommer received many valuable and useful presents from the guests gathered for the occasion.

At 1 o'clock luncheon was served, a feature of which was a beautiful wedding cake. Coffee, tea, ice cream and cakes were served. At midnight the guests departed for home, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Kommer a long and happy life together. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Getzinger, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Slaughter Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Slaughter Sr., Mr. William Clarkson, Mrs. John Buttenfield, Mrs. Frank Redrow Jr., Mrs. Sara Guest, Mrs. George McKeegan, Misses Martha Kommer, Gertrude Runge and Myrna Sager and Mary Finch.

Rev. C. W. Hendrickson, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church of Scottdale, has planned a series of seven sermons to be preached on Sunday mornings at 10.15 on the subject of "The Church's Thermometer." The first to be delivered next Sunday morning, its title will be "Fire." The others will be as follows: March 10, "Tearing," March 17, "Temperance," March 24, "Summer Heat," April 11, "Blood Heat," April 21, "Fever Heat," and April 28, "Boiling Point." The titles of the sermons given an idea of the nature and the pastor invited all the members of the church and their friends to be present and hear this series.

HARL LOWMY DEAD.

The third member of the Albert H. Lowmy family, now only the father left, died of tuberculosis in Los Angeles, Cal., on Saturday, according to word received by relatives in this place. The mother died about a year ago, and the daughter, Lulu, who had been married just a short while, died about three months ago, and finally the son. The young man was aged about 19. Mr. Lowmy was in Los Angeles, but expects to return to Pennsylvania.

The lecture is next to the last, the International Operatic Singers being here on March 7th, closing the series. These subjects were illustrated by lantern slides. Mrs. Bailey introduced three civic league songs during her address.

THE PRODIGAL JUDGE

By VAUGHAN KESTER
Illustrations by D. McVILL

"Yes, dear lady?"

"I'm mighty sorry that ten dollars I loaned you was bad—but you don't need ever to pay it back! It was Captain Murrell gave it to me."

"I consecrate myself to his destruction! Judge Solomon Price cannot be humiliated with impunity!"

"I should think you would save your wild, Price, until you'd waded out of danger!" Mahaffy spoke gruffly.

"How are you going to get me out of this, Solomon—for I suppose you are here to break jail for me," said the judge.

"Well, Price, I guess all we can do is to go back to town and see if I can get into my cabin—I've got an old saw there. If I can find it, I can come again tomorrow night and cut away one of the logs, or the cleats of the door."

"In heaven's name, do that tonight, Solomon!" implored the judge. "Why procrastinate?"

"Price, there's a pack of dogs in this neighborhood, and we must have a full night to move in, or they'll pull us down before we've gone ten miles!"

"You're right, Solomon; I'd forgotten the dogs."

Mahaffy closed and fastened the shutters, then he and Hianhui stood across the clearing and entered the woods. The judge went to bed. He was aroused by the arrival of his breakfast, which the sheriff brought about eight o'clock.

"Well, if I was in your boots I couldn't sleep like you!" remarked that official admiringly. "But I reckon, sir, this ain't the first time the penitentiary has stared you in the face."

It was nearing the noon hour when the judge's solitude was again invaded. He first heard the distant murmur of voices on the road and passed an uneasy and restless ten minutes, with his eye to a crack in the door. He was soothed and reassured, however, when at last he caught sight of the sheriff.

"Well, Judge, I got company for you," cried the sheriff cheerfully, as he threw open the door. "A house-thief!"

He pushed into the building a man, hatless and coatless, with a pair of pale villainous eyes and a tobacco-stained chin. The judge viewed the newcomer with disfavor. As for the horse-thief, he gave his companion in misery a coldly critical stare, seated himself on the stool, and with quick a fierce air devoted all his energy to mastication. He neither altered his position nor changed his expression until he and the judge were alone, then, catching the judge's eye, he made what seemed a casual movement with his hand, the three fingers raised, but to the judge this clearly was without significance, and the horse-thief manifested no further interest where he was concerned. He did not even condescend to answer the one or two civil remarks the judge addressed to him.

As the long afternoon more itself away, the judge lived through the many stages of doubt and uncertainty, for suppose anything had happened to Mahaffy?

Standing before the window, the judge watched the last vestige of light fade from the sky and the stars appear. Would Mahaffy come? The

"Neighbor, that means me!" he cried.

Supper was intolerable. Suddenly out of the silence sounded a loud drawn whistle. Three times it was repeated. The horse-thief leaped to his feet.

"Neighbor, that means me!" he cried.

The moon was rising now, and by its light the judge saw a number of horsemen appear on the edge of the woods. They entered the clearing, picking their way among the stumps without haste or caution. When quite close, five of the band dismounted; the rest continued on about the jail or cantered off toward the road.

"Look out inside, there!" cried a voice, and a log was dashed against the door; once—twice—it rose and fell on the clapboards, and under those mighty thuds grew up a wide gap through which the moonlight streamed splendidly. The horse-thief stepped between the dangling sleats and vanished.

The judge tossed away the stool. He understood now. With a count, not to say faint step, the judge emerged from the jail.

"Your servant, gentlemen!" he said, lifting his hat.

"Gilt!" said one of the men briefly, and the judge moved nimbly away toward the woods.

Now to find Solomon and the boy, and then to put the miles between himself and Pleasantville with all diligence. As he thought this, almost at his elbow Mahaffy and Hianhui rose from behind a fallen log. The Yankee motioned for silence and pointed west.

CHAPTER X.

Belle Plain.

"Now, Tom," said Betty, with a little air of excitement as she rose from the breakfast table that first morning at Belle Plain. "I want you to show me everything!"

"I reckon you'll notice some changes," remarked Tom.

He went from the room and down the hall a step or two in advance of her. On the wide porch Betty paused, breathing deep. The house stood on an eminence, directly before it at the bottom of the slight descent was a small bayou, beyond this the forest stretched away in one unbroken mass to the Mississippi.

"What is it you want to see, anyhow, Betty?" Tom demanded.

"Everything—the place, Tom—Belle Plain! Oh, isn't it beautiful! I had no idea how lovely it was!" cried Betty, as with her eyes still fixed on the distant panorama of wood and water she went down the steps, him at her heels—he but she'd got sick of it all soon enough, that was one comfort!

"Why, Tom! Why does the law look like this?"

"Like what?" inquired Tom.

"Why, this—all weeds and briars, and the paths overgrown?"

Mr. Ware rubbed his chin reflectively with the back of his hand.

"That sort of thing looked all right, Bet," he said, "but it kept five or six of the best hands out of the fields right at the busiest time of the year."

"Invent I slaves enough?" she asked.

The dull color crept into Ware's cheeks. He hated her for that "I!" So she was going to come that on him, was she?

"Don't you want to see the crops, Betty?"

The girl shook her head and moved swiftly down the path that led from terrace to terrace to the margin of the bayou. At the first terrace she "sneezed."

"It's positively splendid!" cried Betty, with a little stamp of her foot.

Ware glanced about with dull eyes. "I'll tell you, Betty, I'm busy this morning, you poke about and see what you want done and we'll do it," he said, and made a hasty retreat to his office.

Betty returned to the porch and sent her own on the top step, with her elbow on her knees and her chin sunk in the palms of her hands, gazed about her miserably enough. She was still there when half an hour later Charley Norton galloped up the drive from the highroad. Catching sight of her on the porch, he sprang from the saddle, and, throwing his reins to a black boy, hurried to her side.

"Inspecting your domain, Betty?" he asked, as he took his place near her on the step.

"Why didn't you tell me, Charley—or at least prepare me for this?" she asked, almost tearfully.

"How was I to know, Betty? I haven't been here since you went away, dear—what was there to bring me? Old Tom would make a cow pasture out of the Garden of Eden, wouldn't he—a beautiful, practical, world soul he is!"

Norton spent the day at Belle Plain; and though he was there on his good behavior as the result of an agreement they had reached on board The Nain, he proposed twice.

Tom was mistaken in his supposition that Betty would soon tire of Belle Plain. She demanded men, and teams, and began on the lawns. This interested and fascinated her. She was out at sun-up to direct her laborers. She had the advantage of Charley Norton's presence and advice for the greater part of each day in the week, and Sundays he came to look over what had been accomplished, and, as Tom firmly believed, to put that little foot up to fresh nonsense. He could have booted him!

As the grounds took shape before her delighted eyes, Betty found leisure to institute a thorough reformation indoors. A number of house servants were rescued from the quarters and she began to instruct them in their new duties.

Betty's sphere of influence extended itself. She soon began to have her doubts concerning the treatment accorded the slaves, and was not long in discovering that Hicks, the overseer, ran things with a heavy hand. Matters reached a crisis one day when, happening to ride through the quarters, she found him disciplining a refractory black. She turned sick at the sight. Here was a slave actually being whipped by another slave while Hicks stood looking on with his hands in his pockets, and with a brutal, satisfied air.

"Stop!" commanded Betty, her eyes blazing. She strove to keep her voice steady. "You shall not remain at Belle Plain another hour."

Hicks said nothing. He knew it would take more than her saying so to get him off the place. Betty turned her horse and galloped back to the house. She felt that she was in no condition to see Tom just at that moment, and dismounting at the door, ran upstairs to her room.

Meantime the overseer sought out Ware in his office. His manner of stating his grievance was singular. He began by swearing at his employer. He had been insulted before all the quarters—his rage fairly choked him; he could not speak.

Tom seized the opportunity to swear back.

"Sent you off the place, did she; well, you'll have to eat crow. I'll do all I can. I don't know what girls were ever made for anyhow, damned if I do!" he added.

Hicks consented to eat crow only after Mr. Ware had cursed and cajoled him into a better and more forgiving frame of mind.

Later, after Hicks had made his apology, the two men smoked a friendly pipe and discussed the situation. Tom pointed out that opposition was useless, a losing game; you could get your way by less direct means. She wouldn't stay long at Belle Plain, but while she did remain they must avoid any more crises of the sort through which they had just passed, and presently she'd be sick of the place.

In the midst of her activities Betty occasionally found time to think of Draca Carrington. She was sure she did not wish to see him again. But when three weeks had passed she began to feel incensed that he had not appeared. She thought of him with hot cheeks and a quickening of the heart. It was anger.

Then one day when she had decided forever to banish all memory of him from her mind, he presented himself at Belle Plain.

She was in her room just putting the finishing touches to an especially satisfying toilet when her maid tapped on the door and told her there was a gentleman in the parlor who wished to see her.

"Is it Mr. Norton?" asked Betty.

"No, Miss—he didn't give no name, Miss."

When Betty entered the parlor a moment later she saw her caller standing with his back turned toward her as he gazed from one of the windows, but she instantly recognized those broad shoulders, and the fine poise of the shapely head that surmounted them.

"Oh, Mr. Carrington!" and Betty stopped short, while her face grew rather pale and then crimsoned. "Then she advanced boldly and held out a frigid hand. 'I didn't know—so you are alive—you disappeared so suddenly that night—'"

"Yes, I'm alive," he said, and then with a smile, "but I fear before you get through with me we'll both wish I were not, Betty."

"Do you still hate me, Betty—Miss Malloy—is there anything I can say or do that will make you forgive me?" He looked at her penitently.

But Betty hardened her heart against him and prepared to keep him in place.

"Will you sit down?" she indicated a chair. He seated himself and Betty put a safe distance between them. "Are you staying in the neighborhood, Mr. Carrington?" she asked, rather unkindly.

"No, I'm not staying in the neighborhood. When I left you, I made up my mind I'd wait at New Madrid until I could come on down here and say I was sorry."

"And it's taken you all this time?" Carrington regarded her seriously. "I reckon I must have come for more time, Betty—Miss Malloy." In spite of herself, Betty glowed under the caressing humor of his tone.

"Really—you must have chosen poorly then when you selected New Madrid. It couldn't have been a good place for your purpose."

To Be Continued.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.

We have sold other remedies for skin troubles but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D.D.D. stops the itch at once. We can give you a trial size bottle for 25 cents that will be enough to prove it.

Of course all other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.

Checking Accounts No. 7

COLLECTIONS

One of the greatest services a bank renders you, when you have a checking account, is making collections. If a business man had to personally collect all the checks, drafts and notes he receives in the course of a year it would take so much of his time and cost him so much for railway fares that he would soon be bankrupt. The bank performs this service for you, FREE, through its correspondents. It is your personal Clearing House. You simply take all your items—checks, drafts, notes, coupons and maturing securities—to it and they are collected and placed to your credit without bother, worry or expense on your part.

There is scarcely anybody who does not receive a check occasionally. Instead of asking someone to cash a check as a favor, why not have your own checking account, with this bank, and have checks cashed without obligation to anyone?

Large or small, your account is cordially invited.

Next week we will tell how the bank helps you with your bookkeeping when you have a checking account.
